Book p. 47, task 5 → Obviously, your story may differ from mine, but all the required words and times from the task need to be included.

It was ten o'clock when my boss, Mr. Carter, and I arrived at one of the old houses in the suburbs of the north of the city. The whole area had seen better times, and there were some funny looking people standing on the street corner. But we were in a hurry. There was a lot of work to do. The new owner, Mr. Aston, wanted to have a wall knocked down upstairs and there were some repairs to do in the bathroom. It had been a long day when Mr. Carter jumped up: "What was that? Did you hear?" I looked at my watch – half past four. He ran downstairs but soon came back. The family hadn't heard anything, although later, when talking to the police, Mr. Carter said that Mr. Aston had looked very worried. It was only when I went out into the garden half an hour later that I saw a body lying on the grass. I listened for a moment, but everything was quiet – the man was dead! I grabbed my mobile phone and called the police. The ringing tone in my ear faded away – and suddenly I woke up. It was just a dream!

Book p. 40, task 3 → Obviously, your answers may differ from mine, but the general content should be the same.

1. How is Jimmy's life different from most other people's lives?
→ Jimmy spends his childhood driving around New Mexico and California. He lives in a bus, in a tent, on a boat or in a trailer. His family does not have a lot of money and sometimes they get in dangerous situations. Jimmy does not go to school regularly.
2. Why did he become the kind of person he is?
→ He might have decided to become a doctor because he wanted to help people who do not have enough money. He is used to being poor and travelling a lot, so he has no problem with his life in Africa. He knows how it feels not to be able to go to school. Therefore, he collects money to build schools in Africa.

23. → Obviously, your answers may differ from mine, but the general content should be the same.

1. Well, it's a village in the Congo, in the middle of Africa. And there's lots of poverty and disease. The people are the best people in the world, but they suffer a lot.
2. I'm going to travel around and talk to all kinds of people. I want to raise money for my hospital in the village, for a clean water system and for schools.
3. They are amazing! Businessmen and bankers give me money, and doctors give me drugs. People help in any way they can.
4. I have trained African doctors and nurses to help me. So there's no problem. They look after the hospital while I'm away.
5. Yes, I have learned to speak their language. But sometimes I speak to my patients in English, too. It's not important which language I use. The important thing is just to be there for them.
6. I work in Africa because I want to do something positive with my life. Most people in this country don't really live at all. I want my life to make a difference.
7. Yes! Please help me to do my work. Give me as much money as you can. I promise you, every dollar will help to save lives in the Congo.
